About Meredith Music Publications

Meredith Music Publications was founded in 1979 by President and Founder Garwood Whaley and was created on the premise that performance and music education are inextricably linked. On this basis, its publications are written to be both instructive and musically rewarding. The publication of Meredith materials is guided by three important principles – that music and music texts must be: 1) artistic and educationally creative, 2) intelligently and attractively presented, and 3) reasonably priced.

These principles govern the selection and presentation of all music and texts chosen for publication by Meredith. The highest degree of artistic excellence and quality remain fundamental to Meredith Music Publications as it continues to expand to meet the needs of today’s students, educators and performers.
